

PRISONER TRIES TO END HIS LIFE

Harry Ebberts Swallows Pieces of Tin Broken from a Tobacco Can —Condition Serious.

ARRESTED HERE FOR FORGERY

Attempt to Commit Suicide Follows
Unsuccessful Effort to Escape
From County Jail.

Failing in his attempt to escape from the county jail, Harry Ebberts, alias Morgan, who was arrested in this city Saturday afternoon on charges of larceny and forgery, tried to commit suicide late Thursday afternoon by swallowing several pieces of tin broken from the lid of a tobacco can. While the physician states that he does not believe that Ebberts' condition is critical, his recovery will not be fully assured for several days. The prisoner suffered considerably during the night and this morning his condition apparently remained unchanged.

Wednesday evening about 6:30 o'clock Mrs. Ebberts, who came to Brownstown from Ravenna, Ohio, the first of the week, requested an interview with her husband. Deputy Sheriff Ed Schneider brought the prisoner into the office at the county jail and intended to remain with them during their conference. It is believed, however, that the interview was a ruse upon the part of Mrs. Ebberts for she very carefully walked in front of the deputy sheriff and the prisoner took advantage of the situation to make a dash for the door.

As Mrs. Ebberts was directly in his path, the deputy sheriff was unable to grab the prisoner who succeeded in reaching the door and started down the street. The deputy sheriff, fleet of foot, dashed after the prisoner and succeeded in catching him about two blocks from the jail.

A short time after Ebberts was placed in his cell he secured pieces of a tobacco box and in some manner broke the lid into small bits and declares that he swallowed quite a quantity of the tin. He did not tell the sheriff that he had attempted to commit suicide until his suffering became unbearable and he asked for a physician. Medical attention was immediately provided and the physician worked for sometime to save his life. Ebberts declined to eat breakfast this morning and has partaken of very little food during the day. He refuses to tell just how much tin he swallowed and it will be impossible to predict the outcome for several days.

Mrs. Ebberts went to Brownstown after receiving a telephone message from her husband informing her of his arrest. She was accompanied by her little daughter. After Sheriff Robertson, who was out of town at the time the prisoner attempted to escape, returned to Brownstown he informed Mrs. Ebberts that she would have to leave or he might file an action against her for aiding a prisoner to escape. She agreed to return to her home.

Ebberts was arrested here after he passed a fraudulent check at the Cut Price Boot Shop where he purchased a pair of shoes. He was given the difference between the price of the shoes and the amount of the check in cash. The officers shadowed him for some time before his arrest but he was not apprehended until they were certain that he was attempting to pass forged checks. In his valise he had many checks on banks in this state and in Ohio. He had checks to the amount of over $550 already signed. His outfit contained a number of rubber stamps and a check protecting machine.

REPUBLICANS WILL MEET IN CONVENTION TONIGHT

Township Ticket Will be Nominated and Much Interest is Shown in Naming of Candidates.

From all indications today the Republican township convention tonight at the city building will be one of the most enthusiastic Republican gatherings that has been held in this township for a number of years. Republicans all over the township have sent word that they will be present and the limited seating capacity of the council chamber is giving the committee some concern today.

Thus far two candidates have officially announced for trustee. Dr. W. M. Casey and Edward C. Rinne, both well known residents of this city, are in the race and their friends are working hard in their behalf. A number of names have been mentioned as assessor and in connection with the other offices.

The township chairman says that every effort will be made to nominate the best ticket that has ever been placed in the field by any political party in the township. Every Republican is urged to attend this meeting and voice his sentiment in the selection of the candidates.

AMERICAN VICE-CONSUL
ARRIVES AT MEXICO CITY

John R. Silliman, Whose Disappearance
Has Caused Much Concern,
Says He is in Good Health.

By United Press.
Mexico City, May 22.—John R. Silliman, American vice consul at Saltillo, arrived here today and said he was in perfect health. His mysterious disappearance almost resulted in new complications in the Mexican trouble.

For several weeks Silliman's whereabouts have been unknown and it was reported that he had been executed. The administration demanded that he be protected and the unsatisfactory reports from Huerta's representatives have caused much concern.

TESTIMONY OF MELLEN IN NEW HAVEN CASE CLOSES

Said He Would Rather Accept Indictment
Than Cause Indictment
of J. P. Morgan.

By United Press.
Washington, May 22.—The testimony of Charles S. Mellen, former president of the New Haven Railroad, was completed today. He said he would accept his own indictment much rather than cause the indictment of J. P. Morgan, "which would have meant Morgan's death."

The hearing was conducted by the interstate commerce commission which conducted an investigation of the financial conditions of the New Haven Company. Joseph W. Folk was the counsel for the commission and cross-examined the witness. His answers were given in ready response to the questions. It is thought that the directors of the company will next be subpoenaed.

WOMAN WANTED BY POLICE ARRESTED

Mrs. Catherine Sutton Returns to Crothersville and is Lodged at the County Jail.

SERIOUS CHARGE PREFERRED

Defendant Broke Down and Cried
when Affidavit is Served—Daughter Sent to Girls' School.

Mrs. Catherine Sutton, who was wanted by the local police on a charge of contributing to the negligence of her daughter, Frances, aged fourteen years, was arrested at Crothersville Thursday night by Chief of Police McCord and was taken to the county jail until her trial is called in the circuit court. An affidavit charging her with contributing to the delinquency of a girl was preferred. As the police court has no jurisdiction in cases of this character the transcript showing the proceedings which had been taken was filed in the circuit court. She will be arraigned later.

The police have been watching for the Sutton woman for several weeks. It is thought that she went to Louisville from this city and had just returned to this vicinity. When arrested she had very little to say about the case but when the affidavit was read to her she broke down and wept. The prosecution says that the evidence is so strong that the woman will be sent to the penitentiary.

Frances Sutton, the daughter, was taken into charge by the local police several weeks ago and told one of the most pitiful stories that has been related to the officers. The mother and daughter were under police surveillance for several days before the girl was arrested as several reports had come to headquarters of the conduct of the mother. The girl was found at the B. & O. Southwestern passenger depot about midnight and said that she was to meet her mother there. Mrs. Sutton did not appear although close watch was maintained until daylight. The officers believe that the woman discovered that her daughter had been arrested and fearing that she would be jailed left the city on an early morning train.

The girl told the court that she had had no home for more than a week prior to her arrest and had been sleeping in barns and sheds. She said they formerly lived in Glenlawn but that they left the house. The family had no furniture and the girl brought what few clothes she possessed to the police station. She was sent to the Girls' Industrial School at Clermont.

When Mrs. Sutton was arrested Wednesday night she was accompanied by her four-year-old daughter. She said that the child would be given a home with her grandparents in Scott county and the police will endeavor to place the baby there.

PLAN TO INSPECT
WIRING SYSTEMS

Proposed That State Fire Marshal
Longley be Requested to Send Expert Electrician Here.

FIRE PREVENTION MEASURE

Pointed Out That After Several Years Insulation is Worn Off and Buildings Are Endangered.

Believing that a number of buildings in this city are endangered by fire from defective electrical wiring, Fire Chief Everhart and several business men have been conferring to the end of requesting the state fire marshal to send an expert electrician here to inspect the buildings in the business part of the city. Those who have heard of the plan believe that it is favorable and have stated their desire to assist. It is thought that the State Fire Marshal W. E. Longley will send an inspector here without cost to the city.

Similar inspections have been made in several cities in Indiana during the last few months and in a number of cases wires were found to be defective and that the danger of fire from "short circuits" was much greater than the owners were aware. In other cities the merchants have cooperated with the fire department and the state fire marshal conducted the inspection as they believed it was for their own protection. It is thought that a lower insurance rate might be secured if the wiring is done according to the instructions of the state fire marshal, although this matter must be taken up direct with the companies after the first inspection is made and it is shown that the plan is being carried out thereafter.

Chief Everhart said today that while the department had not made a close investigation of the wiring in the buildings in the business district, he felt sure that in many places there was danger from fire and thought that the inspection should be made for the safety of the occupants as well as the protection of the owners. It is pointed out that if the wires come in contact with the ceiling, floors or other surface, the insulation is worn off after a certain length of time unless precaution is taken to guard against the friction. It is said that several buildings were wired many years ago and that there is danger from fire as no inspection has ever been made. It is further stated that at a very small expense the defective places in the wires can be repaired which will be a safeguard against needless loss.

Among the business men who are interested in the plan is L. A. Ebner, of the Ebner Lee & Cold Storage Company, who believes that such an inspection will be valuable to the city in that it may save hundreds and possibly thousands of dollars from fires which could be prevented. Other business men have been told of the plan and have readily given their consent not only to cooperate with the expert electrician but have asked that the wires in their stores be inspected.

State Fire Marshal Longley is response to a letter from Chief Everhart several days ago stated that he would come to Seymour at the earliest possible date and would give his personal attention to the appointment of a competent electrician. However, no definite date was set by Mr. Longley when he would come to Seymour and further arrangements are being withheld until word is received from him.

Case Against Crothersville Man Dismissed When Ill Kept Lot is Given Attention.

Deputy Prosecutor F. W. Wesner went to Crothersville today in response to a notice that S. Applegate, a merchant at that place, was to be tried on a charge of refusing to comply with an order issued by the town board. The affidavit was filed with a justice of peace.

The defendant owns a vacant lot adjoining his store building on the main street and several complaints were made that the lot had been used as a hitching ground and should be kept in a more sanitary condition. The board issued an order to clean up the premises within ten days and forbade him from using the lot as a hitching ground. He said that another member of the board had extended the time. However, he complied with the order before the case came to trial and it was dismissed.

DESERVED PRAISE
FOR SENIOR PLAY

Much Talent Exhibited in Presentation of Farce Comedy at Majestic Theater Thursday Night.

LINES WELL INTERPRETED

Ludicrous Situations of Bishop, Professor, Hymn Book Agent and Escaped Asylum Inmate.

"What Happened to Jones," a farce comedy replete with ludicrous situations, was presented by thirteen members of the Senior class at the Majestic Theater Thursday night before a large audience. The class play is one of the most important features of the commencement exercises and the members of the cast gave considerable time and study in preparing their parts. Each participant, however, was well rewarded for the work as many compliments were heard upon the able manner in which the lines were interpreted. The success of the play is due to the individual efforts of each member of the cast and all deserved the praise given.

The members of the cast were as follows:

Jones, Who travels for a Hymn-book House Charles Trumbo
Ebenezer Goodly, A Professor of Anatomy Ray Himebaugh
Antony Goodly, D. D., Bishop of Ballarat William Byrne
Richard Heatherly, Engaged to Marjorie Omer Greeman
Thomas Holder, A Policeman Everett Murray
William Bigbee, An Inmate of the Sanatorium Herbert Gallamore
Henry Fuller, Superintendent of the Sanatorium Everett Murray
Mrs. Goodly, Ebenezer's Wife Lillian Osterman
Cissy, Ebenezer's Ward Inez Kreinhagen
Marjorie and Minerva, Ebenezer's Daughters Esther Doane and Katherine Kessler Alvina Starlight, Mrs. Goodly's Sister Faye Everhart Helma, Swedish Servant-girl Alice Saunders.

The play was written by George H. Broadhurst and is of continuous action. The first scene opened with Ebenezer Goodly, a professor of anatomy, sitting in his study, awaiting the arrival of his brother, the Rev. Anthony Goodly, D. D., Bishop of Ballarat, who has been living in Australia for many years. Richard Heatherly, engaged to Marjorie Goodly, leaves the house to fill an important business engagement, but returns unexpectedly in search of his ticket to a "glove" contest. The ticket is found by the professor who is persuaded to attend the bout in the interest of science.

The professor and his prospective son-in-law return suddenly from the "glove" contest having avoided arrest by climbing from the roof of the building. They are followed by Jones, the hymn-book agent, who is mistaken for a policeman. Jones takes advantage of the situation to avoid arrest himself and remains at the Goodly home. He finds out that the Bishop is expected and dons the spring that they may appear well during the rest of the season, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture's landscape gardener.

The best and most widely used mixture for seeding a lawn is one of Kentucky blue grass and red top, equal parts by weight. On absolutely bare soil a pound of seed should be sown to every 200 square feet. Only one-fourth of that amount is necessary on moderately good lawns. Only the very best seed should be used. Seed that is furnished by a reliable seedsman is likely to be good. Thin places should be heavily seeded, and when there are considerable areas almost without grass, it is advisable to sow white clover seed in addition to the mixture already recommended.

Poor preparation of the soil is much more often the cause for poor results than the quality of seed. Where the surface of the ground is not loosened up and well pulverized so that the grass seeds may come in contact with the soil, the best of seed will not germinate. There should also be plenty of vegetable matter (humus) in the ground for the seed to give the best results.

Sometimes bad weather conditions, as drought, will affect results, even though the seed is good and the soil has been well prepared; nor is a quick rain at the time of sowing an undoubted blessing, for if such a rain just causes the seeds to sprout, and is then followed by dry weather, the weed seeds, already plentiful in the soil, will also sprout and being stronger to resist the dry weather than the grass seed, will crowd out the latter. The seedsman in such an instance may be blamed without reason for selling an inferior product.

FINAL ARE PREPARATIONS BEING MADE FOR EXHIBIT

Practically All the Foreign Contributions Have Been Received—Painting by Trobaugh.

Final preparation for the art exhibit which will open at the Shields high school building Tuesday night under the auspices of the Seymour Art League will be made Saturday. Practically all the foreign pictures have been received and will be unpacked this week. The task of hanging the pictures will be started Saturday.

Roy Trobaugh, of Delphi, who has studied in New York under Twachtman, has sent one of his best paintings, the title of which is "Bridge at Midnight."

Hugh M. Herrick, of Indianapolis, will have a picture, "Building at Millersville" on exhibit.

"The Purple Bowl", a water color by Edna Maan Shover, has attracted much attention at other exhibits and will be seen here.

Boy Scouts Friday Night.

On account of the class play on Thursday night the Boy Scouts and Pathfinders will meet at the high school gymnasium Friday evening, May 22 at 7 o'clock. Every scout who helped in clean-up week is especially asked to be present as well as all the other boys. Something special. m15d

The Annual Sunday School Convention, which will convene in Indianapolis, June 16th to 18th, will have on its program a list of speakers which would be difficult to equal. Most of them are well known in Indiana.

UNPROFITABLE SERVANTS

GOLDEN TEXT.—He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord. 1 Cor. 1:31

There is no doubt a connection always between every part of the Scriptures and the context, that which goes before or after, but sometimes it is a little difficult to see it. In all our Bible study we must rely wholly upon the author, the Holy Spirit, but we are oftentimes slow to hear or see. How much we do need anointed eyes and ears! The unavoidable conflict between light and darkness will always cause offenses, so the Pharisees were often offended with Christ (Matt. xlii, 57).

It had been prophesied of Christ that He would be a rock of offense to both the houses of Israel (Isa. viii, 14), and so be proved to be according to Rom. ix, 33; 1 Cor. i, 23; 1 Pet. ii, 8. Even John the Baptist seems to have been offended with Christ (Luke vii, 19-23), and on that last night He told His disciples that even though He might allow them to be put out of the synagogues and to be killed they must not be offended (John xvi, 1-3). Yet He told them that they would be offended because of Him that very night (Matt. xxvi, 31).

There was a time when He said to Peter, "Get thee behind me, Satan; thou art an offense unto me, for thou savourest not the things that be of God, but those that be of man" (Matt. xvi, 23).

Perhaps we have here the key to at least a part of the whole matter of offenses; the things of God are an offense to men, and the things of men are an offense to God, or as He said in the context of the last lesson, "That which is highly esteemed among men is an abomination in the sight of God."

In the first two verses of our lesson has He a reference to the rich man's being an offense or stumbling block to the poor beggar, and is the truth the same as when He said of Judas Iscariot, "It had been good for that man if he had not been born" (Matt. xvi, 24). If any of our members should cause us to stumble into hell fire it would be better for us not to have them (Matt. xviii, 8, 9; Mark ix, 43-48).

We must use all care not to be an offense to others, even in our eating and drinking (Rom. xiv, 13, 21; 1 Cor. viii, 13). If others offend us we must forgive them when they repent, even so often as seven times in a day (verses 3, 4).

When Peter asked if he should forgive as many as seven times seven (Matt. xviii, 21, 22), which I understand to mean till the kingdom comes, the complete fulfillment of the seventy sevens of Dan. ix, 24. We all need forgiveness so often that we cannot but continually forgive others. We can only freely and constantly forgive others as we live in the power of the reality of the coming kingdom, when all that offends shall cease to be (Matt. xiii, 41). A living faith, for a grain of mustard seed suggests life, will accomplish great things (Matt. xvii, 20; xxi, 21, 22), but who is there who can show a fulfillment of the words, "All things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, be lieving, ye shall receive?" What is our difficulty? Why do we not know more of the power of God and His kingdom in our lives? Is it because, like the elder brother, we are trying to do our duty, but not understanding our Father's love nor the abundance that is ours, saying to Him, "Thou never gavest me a kid that I might make merry with my friends," while He is saying to us, "Thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine?" (Luke xv, 20, 31). As the riches of His grace and glory control us we shall be less apt to be offended, even as it is written, "Great peace have they who love the law, and nothing shall offend them" (Ps. cxix, 165).

We shall also in the same power be better able to yield to others, and "yielding pacifieth great offenses" (Eccl. x, 4). The love of God, which in Christ and by virtue of His great sacrifice makes us sure of a welcome such as the prodigal received and of bliss beyond this life such as the poor beggar entered into, should constrain us to have nothing but love for all, even for those who hate us, if such there be; the love that is kind, that suffers long, that seeketh not her own and is not provoked (11 Cor. v, 14, 15; 1 Cor. xiii, 4-7).

The word duty, which is found in the last verse of our lesson, is not a word for the believer, for we read that when we have done our duty we are unprofitable servants, and no believer should be an unprofitable servant. Yet how often we hear the word in reference to our daily life, because love is not known. Imagine a man loving his wife, or a wife her husband, from a sense of duty. What kind of a home would that be? I once heard a sermon on duty, and it made me so tired that as soon as I went home I took my Concordance to see what was really written in the Bible about it, and the result was that I never use the word in reference to the Christian life.

May we so live in the love of God that all that is not love shall be crowding out of our lives, the life of Jesus made manifest in us, the righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit which are characteristics of the kingdom ever fill us (11 Cor. iv, 10, 11; Rom. xiv, 17).

clerical suit of clothes which is sent for the Bishop.

For several hours Jones is successful in his new role but his troubles begin when the real bishop arrives on the scene. For the time being, however, the predicament is relieved by an escaped inmate from a neighboring asylum who is harmless but believes he is an Indian. The Bishop garbed in a blanket with which he clothed himself while investigating the cause of the delay of the return of a suit of clothes is mistaken for the escaped inmate and is taken to the police station. The officers returned him to the Goodly home after he had fully convinced them that he is the Bishop of Ballarat.

The complicated situation which is telling on the professor is cleared up in the last act when Heatherly makes a satisfactory explanation and Jones avoids arrest by threatening to prosecute the officer for the false imprisonment of the Bishop.

Alvina, the old maid sister of Mrs. Goodly, is engaged to be married to Bishop Goodly and keeps careful count of the several hundred letters which he has sent her. Alvina and Helma, the Swedish servant girl, who enjoyed being paid to forget what happened around the house, added interest to the play.

The play was given under the direction of the high school faculty and Arthur J. Beriault, of Indianapolis.

ALARMING INCREASE IN MEASLES CASES IN STATE

Twenty-eight Deaths from Disease Occurred in Indiana During Month of April.

Reports of 2,628 cases of measles in Indiana were made to the state board of health for the month of April. Twenty-eight deaths from the disease were reported and sixty-three counties recorded the disease as prevalent within their borders. The increase over the preceding month was alarming. The total number of deaths for the month reported in the estate was 3,316, at a state death rate of 14.4. The rate in the preceding month was 15.1. Of the total number of deaths, 84.7 per cent. was of persons more than sixty-five years old.

The northern counties of the state reported a death rate of 13 in each one thousand population, averaged and estimated on an annual basis for the month. The central counties reported a rate of 15.8 and the southern counties reported a rate of 14.

The southern counties presented the highest death rate for tuberculosis, scarlet fever, measles, whooping cough and poliomyelitis. From the latter disease there were three deaths in the state during the month.

The northern counties presented the highest death rate for typhoid fever, diphtheria, diarrhea and enteritis and external causes. In the central section the highest death rate for labor and bronchial pneumonia, cerebro-spinal fever, influenza, cancer and smallpox was evident. Reports of 449 cases of smallpox were made during the month from forty-four counties, with only one death in the state.

The unusual similarity between the number of deaths in rural and urban communities was noticed by health officials. Exactly the same total of deaths was reported from rural communities as from the cities of the state, 1,671.

The death rate in Indianapolis was high, 19.1. There were 444 deaths from pneumonia in the state, at a rate of 193.2 for each 100,000 population. Tuberculosis caused 385 deaths.

There were 4,410 births in the state during the month, of which 2,236 were males and 2,174 were females. Of the total, seventy-three children born were colored. The highest birth rate was in Lake county, where a rate of 31.4 was reported. The lowest rate went to Posey county with 10.1. The total number of babies born in the state thus far in 1914 is 20,166, according to the report from the state board.

SEED SHOULD BE SOWN ON LAWN DURING THE SPRING

Department of Agriculture Gives Advice on How to Obtain the Best Results.

Washington, D. C., May 22.—Even though the lawn has not been seeded during the early spring, it is well worth while to apply seed to it later. This, however, should not be done during a drought. All lawns should have some application of seed in the

Skin Health Comes From the Blood

Even Slight Eruptions Such As Acne Should Be Treated.

Pimples and other skin troubles do not alight on the face like flies. They come bubbling out from within. They are impurities. And if let alone or treated with salves they become chronic, simply because the cause is still at work within. It should be attacked with S. S. S. and the impurities in the blood thus rendered harmless. The skin is but a net work of fine blood vessels. And it is a perfectly natural consequence that any influence in the blood that is a condition of ill health makes its first appearance in the skin. There are certain medicinal properties that follow the course of the blood stream and the influence of these properties is that of an antidote. This is why S. S. S., the best-known blood purifier, has such a positive action in the skin. There is one ingredient in S. S. S. which peculiarly stimulates cellular or glandular activity to select from the blood or from this fine net work of blood vessels in the skin, those elements which it requires for regeneration.

These pimples, acne, eczema, lupus, or any other blood condition that attacks the skin or seeks an outlet through the skin is met with the antidotal effect of S. S. S.

This is why skin troubles vanish so readily and why they do not return. Under the influence of S. S. S. this fine net work of blood vessels in the skin is constantly taking from the blood the nutrition required for healthy tissue and the cause of disease is just as constantly being removed, scattered and rendered harmless. These facts are more fully explained in a book on skin troubles sent by The Swift Specific Co., 531 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. You will find S. S. S. on sale at all drug stores. Get a bottle today and banish all skin afflictions.

MARION COUNTY CORONER ISSUES WARNING TO AUTOISTS

Urges Visitors at Indianapolis During Speedway Week to Watch Crossings.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 22—Coroner Durham of Marion county today issued a warning through the United Press to all those in Indiana who intend to be present at the Speedway race May 30, asking them to exercise extreme care, both as drivers of automobiles and as pedestrians, in passing grade crossings. The danger of these crossings, especially to automobilists, has been impressed on him during the past few days, for he has been investigating the accident of last Sunday in which Thomas O. Stout and three others were killed at a grade crossing near Fort Benjamin Harrison.

"The traffic will be greatly increased during Speedway Week," said the coroner, both by automobiles and on railroads and interurbans. Indianapolis has some very dangerous grade crossings, hidden by buildings, and these should be guarded carefully during this week. Drivers should exercise extreme care."

Dr. Durham had little to say about the grade crossing evil generally. He said he believed the fault was pretty evenly divided between the traction or railroad company and employees and the traveling public. Whereas some crossings are very dangerous, some drivers are very reckless. It is true, he said, that in case of fatalities, the dead cannot tell their side of the story, and the other side is enlarged upon.

He said that by virtue of their permanence and weight, the cars of the common carrier should be given right-of-way, but that rules strictly enforced should be thrown about the preventing undue speed at grade crossings. Also, he said, dangerous crossings, such as the one at which the Stout automobile was struck, should be made safer.

At this crossing there were double tracks both for the interurban line and for the railroad. View of the approaching interurban was partially shut off by woods. The interurban tracks were on the far side from the automobile, and were lower than the railroad tracks, making it easily possible that Stout did not see these tracks. There was an up-grade, which was another dangerous feature, according to Dr. Durham, the interurban probably was traveling at a high rate of speed, for it knocked the auto into bits, threw the bodies fifty or sixty feet and dragged part of the machine a good distance.

WABASH COLLEGE TO RAISE $75,000 FUND FOR GYMNASIUM

Alumni Will be Asked to Contribute—
Two Members of Board to Give $5,000 Each.

By United Press.

Crawfordsville, Ind., May 22—Every alumnus of Wabash college will in the near future be asked to contribute generously towards a fund to be used in the erection of a gymnasium. Wabash has no gymnasium at present, and is in great need of one, according to President G. L. Mackintosh, who is sending out the appeal. The proposed building will cost not less than $75,000.

In introducing the subject, President Mackintosh says that a gymnasium may serve a moral end in student life. "The average young man," he says, "is possessed of a superabundance of animal vigor which must be woven into fabric of his being through systematic exercise. Otherwise, there is danger it may be carried into less desirable ends."

Two members of the board of trustees have stated they will contribute $5,000 each, but as the president puts it, "it will be necessary for every Wabash man to do his best if we are successful."

Though the Little Giants have always been most successful in athletics, it has always been under the severe handicap of inadequate gymnasium facilities. It is believed that with a new building such as the one proposed, athletics here would be given a great impetus.

The president states that in the last quarter century only one building, Yandes Library Hall, has been erected on the Wabash campus.

EFFORT TO AVOID A POLITICAL GRAB

Charles S. Mellen, of New Haven Railroad, Tells Experiences with Politicians.

TESTIMONY IS INTERESTING

Every Bit of Help Extended to Eastern Politicians Served to Whet Their Appetite for More.

Washington, May 22.—Ex-President Charles S. Mellen of the New Haven railroad, continued his interesting recital before the interstate commerce commission of the financial history of the New Haven railroad.

He disclosed the fact that President Roosevelt, back in 1907, promised that the New Haven's ownership of steamship lines would not be disturbed by the federal government if Mr. Mellen would turn down an offer of $20,000,000 which he had received for these properties from Charles W. Morse. Later, when Mr. Mellen made further waterline purchases, Mr. Roosevelt accused him of "sharp practices," and a break between them was threatened. This was averted by the production by Herbert Knox Smith, Mr. Roosevelt's commissioner of corporations, of a written record of the talk that had taken place between Roosevelt and Mellen in reference to the steamship line.

In the suit begun later against the New Haven under the Sherman anti-trust law the steamship lines were omitted and Mr. Mellen attributed this to the fact that Mr. Roosevelt was keeping faith with him. It was the first time that Washington ever has understood why the steamship properties were not included in the complaint.

Mr. Mellen's testimony indicates that there was some ground for Charles W. Morse's complaint that he was being pursued by the Roosevelt administration. The turning down of Morse's offer at the suggestion of President Roosevelt was just before the 1907 panic, when Morse was sailing high.

Policy of "Beneficent Monopoly." It was, however, in the matter of his views on more personal subjects that Mr. Mellen's testimony was chiefly interesting. He had a bright reply for almost every question. He declared that the policy of the New Haven in New England was one of beneficent monopoly; that it had met failure at the hands of Providence through the death of J. P. Morgan. Mr. Mellen contended that had Mr. Morgan lived the vast project would have been a great success and the New Haven railroad today would have been paying dividends.

In this connection he expressed the opinion that the country is headed toward government ownership of railroads and that, in the retrospect he was able to see now that he had been helping the movement in that direction.

Mr. Mellen told of his efforts to avoid politicians in all of the New England states and New York; how their appetite was whetted by every bit of help extended by the railroads, and how the New Haven was concerned more over preventing legislation than it was in obtaining it.

Stockholders he described as sheep who in prosperous times browsed on, but when trouble arose all ran for the same hole in the fence, generally to their own injury.

"MORDECAI BROWN'S DAY"

Gala Event in Baseball Circles Billed For Indianapolis Sunday.

Indianapolis, May 22.—The management of the Indianapolis Federal League baseball club is planning a gala event for Sunday, May 24, when the Hoosiers meet the strong St. Louis club in this city, and there is every indication that an immense crowd will attend. The day has been set aside as "Mordecai Brown Day," in honor of the world famous ex-Cub, who will pitch for the St. Louis team, of which he is manager. "Three-Fingered Brown," as he is called, helped the Chicago National League club win two pennants and one world's championship. He is showing his old-time form this year. Both the Indianapolis and St. Louis clubs are made up of many big league stars, and as Falkenberg or Moseley will pitch for Indianapolis, a hard contest is promised. The game will be called at 3 o'clock p. m. Cheap rates on most of the railroads entering Indianapolis will enable many people from over the state to attend.

MAKE YOUR WINDOWS TALK

A properly trimmed window is a great business builder.

What is better to put in your display than the things the people want to see.

Suppose there is an advertising campaign on in the local newspapers exploiting some article that happens to be in your stock.

Naturally, that name is in the public mind and there is a desire to see that particular article. Then is the time to put it in your windows and let the public now you are on the job.

People like a live store, and they naturally class the merchant who shows them what they want to see as one who is alert to his and to their opportunities.

Make your windows talk at the right time.

GOSSIP FROM THE CAPITAL

Bits of Washington News of Particular Interest to Hoosiers.

Washington, May 22.—For the first time in its history the Monday Evening club now has a woman for its president. Honor of heading this largest of the capital's social service agencies was conferred upon Mrs. Ernest P. Bicknell, formerly of Indianapolis, wife of the retiring president of the club, while the position of first vice president was given to Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the president. Their election was in the nature of recognition by the club of their efforts to bring about elimination of Washington slums.

The senate has confirmed these Indiana postoffice nominations: Geneva, William W. Briggs; Hope, Julius C. Fisher; Lawrenceburg, Albert Spangenberg; Marion, Oscar C. Bradford; Milroy, James R. Sage; North Judson, Frank J. Vessely; Princeton, John C. Gorman; Summitville, William E. Cartwright.

Vice President and Mrs. Marshall went to Charlotte, N. C., where the vice president was the principal speaker at the annual celebration of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence.

Dr. D. C. Peyton, superintendent of the Indiana reformatory, wants to lead a regiment of men into Mexico in case war with that country is declared. Dr. Peyton volunteered his services in a letter in which he advises the secretary of war that he has organized "a regiment of the best young men in southern Indiana" and that they already have conducted numerous drills and are in fine shape to go to the front.

Struck by Interurban Car. Winchester, Ind., May 22.—Harvey Johnston, aged forty-three, a farmer, is dead as a result of injuries suffered when his buggy was struck by an interurban car.

WOUNDED SAILORS LAUD BOYS WHO FELL FIGHTING

Schumacher of the Battleship Florida. Died after Jesting About "Greasers" Greased Bullets.

Tales of the tragic two days when sailors and marines dodged through the streets of Vera Cruz targets for the bullets of hidden snipers were told by the sixty-two wounded who arrived at the New York navy yard on the hospital ship Solace and were taken to the naval hospital.

Of the wounded men in the hospital three had legs amputated, two lost arms and others are so wounded that their fighting days are over.

In their story of the taking of Vera Cruz they told of soft nosed bullets that mangled horribly, of shots that seemed to come from nowhere, of quick reprisals. Some recounted how thirty snipers, taken firing on the Red Cross attendants who tried to minister to the wounded, after a trial of twenty minutes were executed with one volley against a stone wall.

George P. Kinsman of the Vermont told of picking a sniper out and sharing him with a mate who also had marked him for death.

Lost a Leg, but Had Revenge.

"They got my leg," said Kinsman, "but I've got one satisfaction that I'll carry the rest of my life. We had lain in the dirty boat yard all morning after rushing the boathouse and clearing it out. A shot came from the boathouse, and we knew the 'spiggoty' gang was back again, sniping. We had started to rush the boathouse when I saw one of them crawling along with his rifle. Lee saw him, too, and we agreed to kill him together.

"Each of us drew a bead on him. He was heading for a stone house when I said to Lee:

"We'll let the rat think he's safe. We'll let him get as far as the house, and just when he thinks the danger is over we'll give it to him."

"And that's the way we did.

"A minute afterward he started another rush on the boathouse, and I got a shot in the leg at the ankle. Lee got it in the calf of the leg, and we lay while the rest of the battalion made a sieve out of the boathouse. Those bullets are mean to use on a man; they don't give you a chance once they spread."

August Ebel of the Utah, who was shot three times through the shoulders, said:

"We were advancing on the academy when I got a bullet in the shoulder that knocked me down. I was figuring that I had to get out of danger and was crawling along when a Red Cross man came up to me. While he was trying to get me on a stretcher I was shot twice more by some one who had me marked and wanted to finish me. The Red Cross man was shot in the heel. Afterward I found out that the boys discovered eight men doing the sniping in a house opposite and killed them all."

Shot Thrice and Joked About It. Edward Schwartz of New York, who belonged to the gun crew commanded by John Schumacher, the Brooklyn lad who was killed, wouldn't say a word about the wound in his shoulder. All he would talk of was of how Schumacher died, an example to his comrades.

"John Schumacher was one of the finest men on the Florida," said Schwartz before he went to the hospital. "It was hard for the rest of us to restrain ourselves when he was killed, but orders are orders, and we had to treat the Mexicans in a way we didn't like very much.

"He was hit three times, and each time he smiled, even when a bullet thudded into him and dropped him in his tracks. He looked up at his friends as they stood around him, grinned and said:

"These greasers make the bullets slippery with their own grease, I guess, they hit so hard."

"An hour later he was dead. But he is only one. They all died that way—not a coward in the lot."

C. L. Doyle, messenger for Captain Rush of the Florida and in charge of the landing party, went through a hail of bullets, which riddled his canteen, but did not wound him. Doyle was beside Captain Rush when the firing from the Naval academy became deadly. He was detailed to take a message to the Prairie asking her commander to open up with his big guns. The messenger got to the launch, although he was fired upon. He delivered his message, and while he was returning to shore the Prairie's guns began to silence the Mexicans.

ENGLISH NAVY IS FAR AHEAD OF THAT OF UNITED STATES

This Country Also Outdistanced by Germany—Department Has Issued Chart.

The office of naval intelligence in the navy department at Washington has published a chart showing by a series of tables the relative sea strength of the great naval powers of the world. This country continues to stand third, and the table of battleships built or building credits Great Britain with 72, Germany with 39, the United States with 36, France 29, Japan 19, Russia 15, Italy 17 and Austria 10.

The relative order of warship tonnage, including all types of vessels, as disclosed by the chart is as follows:

Present Order (Tonnage Completed)—Great Britain, 2,052,710 tons; Germany, 943,338; United States, 760,002; France, 645,891; Japan, 487,109; Russia, 283,681; Italy, 259,136; Austria, 198,351.

As Would Be the Case if Vessels Now Building Were Completed—Great Britain, 2,591,291 tons; Germany, 1,228,208; United States, 921,844; France, 876,155; Japan, 702,069; Russia, 685,373; Italy, 452,089; Austria, 258,710.

The following vessels were not included in the tables:

Ships over twenty years old from date of launch, unless they have been reconstructed and rearmament within five years; torpedo craft over fifteen years old; those not actually begun or ordered, although authorized; transports, colliers, repair ships, torpedo depot ships or other auxiliaries; vessels of less than 1,500 tons, except torpedo craft, and torpedo craft of less than fifty tons.

England's Prowess.

England maintains her ascendancy over the two next powers in personnel as in ships. She has a total personnel, officers and men, navy and marines, of 145,553, as against 73,396 for Germany and 63,859 for France. The United States stands fourth in total personnel, the figures being 63,413 on Dec. 1. Russia is next with 50,425, Japan with 49,435, Italy with 37,101 and Austria with 20,574.

Of warrant officers England has 2,693, Germany 2,686, United States 867, France 139, Japan 1,553, Russia none, Italy 1,136, and Austria 388.

In enlisted men England has 115,208, Germany 69,920, United States 49,854, France 60,505, Japan 43,847, Russia 47,318, Italy 33,864, and Austria 18,712.

In enlisted marines England has 21,033, Germany 5,597, and United States 9,921.

Japan is strong in flag officers, having a total of 67, ranking next to Great Britain with 93. Japan boasts of 3 admirals of the fleet, 8 admirals, 18 vice admirals and 38 rear admirals. The United States has 1 admiral of the navy and 25 rear admirals. Germany has a total of 40 flag officers, including 2 admirals of the fleet; France a total of 45 (no admirals), Russia 54, Italy 33 (1 admiral), and Austria 14 (1 admiral).

Russia rates 85 chaplains, ranking next to Great Britain with 151. Germany has 28, the United States 24 and Austria 12. Japan evidently believes that the sword is mightier than the prayer book, for she ranks second in officers of flag rank, but has no chaplains. France and Italy also have no spiritual pilots.

TWO TYPES OF SOLDIER.

Striking Dissimilarity Between Americans' Garb in 1846 and Now.

If there are any old Mexicans alive who witnessed the entrance of General Scott's Americans into Vera Cruz in 1846 they must have imagined, says the New York Mail, that they were looking at a different race of human beings as they watched General Funston's soldiers.

Fancy the American militiamen marching under Scott. Many of them wore the old fashioned shakos, eight inches high above the head, made of black felt or beaver, with leather tips at the top, leather bands all around and sometimes a brass crest for a pom-pom. Not a detail of their clothing was planned for ease, but all for the parade. And on their backs they carried knapsacks, which only a strong man could bear and stand erect.

The soldiers Funston disembarked are in soft and pliable khaki of a greenish butternut shade, which is contrived to make a man disappear from view when he is out on the landscape. The collars are low, the garment light. Trousers are loose, and about the legs are leggings or puttees to protect the skin from thorns or rocks. The head is covered with a light felt hat.

Chiropractic

(Ki-ro-prak-tik)

Is the science of adjusting the subluxations (displacements) in the spinal column, commonly called back bone, for the purpose of removing the pressure from impinged nerves. The spinal column is the only place where nerves pass between two hard, bony, movable surfaces; therefore, it is the only place nerves can be impinged or the nerve supply restricted, and it matters not what part of the body or organ is affected, the cause is in the spinal column.

We simply analyze the spine and tell you where you are affected. Chiropractic is the only science that removes the cause of disease. No drugs, no pain, no knife. We use nothing but our hands, and the whole object is accomplished when the nerves are released. Paralysis, deafness, loss of voice, catarrh, gall stones, overweight, rheumatism, appendicitis, neuralgia, neurasthenia, epilepsy, St. Vitus dance, eye, ear, throat, lungs, stomach, liver, kidney, bladder trouble, etc., all quickly and permanently disappear under Chiropractic adjustment, properly given. We remove the cause of disease and nature cures. Analysis and consultation free. Investigation costs you nothing and means your life, health and happiness.

Have you sought health with no permanent results and now pronounced incurable? If so investigate Chiropractic.

SEYMOUR UP AND GOING.

At this time the residents of Seymour cannot only truthfully boast of their city but have many reasons why they should be immensely proud of it.
 In a number of places in Indiana and other states conditions are not flourishing from an industrial point of view, yet in Seymour they are highly satisfactory and the outlook for the summer is very encouraging.

It is admitted by every one that Seymour is one of the best residence towns in the state. It has been given the name of a "city of homes" and surely merits that term. One reason why Seymour is truly a city of homes is because of solid industrial conditions which lead to happiness and contentment. There is probably not another city of the size of Seymour in the state of Indiana where so many residents own their own homes. This, of course, leads to personal pride in the property with the result that the buildings and surroundings are kept in a neat condition.

Seymour can also truthfully boast of the many permanent improvements which are now in progress and which will be made this summer. The city is receiving attention from all parts of the United States because of the Farmers' Club, the only one in the country, which is now in course of construction. Besides this there are many other new buildings being erected and a large number of handsome and modern residences. This indicates healthy business and industrial conditions and lends encouragement to the further growth and improvement of our city.

During the last few years Seymour has installed one of the most modern street lighting systems in the central west. It has constructed several miles of improved streets and further improvements of this kind will be completed during the next few months. In many other respects the appearance of the city has been enhanced, so that a visitor cannot help but be impressed by the evidence of prosperity and thrift as soon as he arrives here.

But our work is not yet completed.
 There are many other improvements which should be given attention and these can best be obtained by cooperation of the citizens.

POLITICS AND DIPLOMACY.

(St. Louis Globe Democrat)

It seems superfluous to say that mediation at Niagara Falls must begin with a communication of the demand for the elimination of Huerta.
 This has been a personal matter with Mr. Wilson from the beginning. With Huerta out of the way he would probably be willing to treat with the three representatives of Huerta's party, appointed by Huerta and now representing the Huerta party at the mediation conference. Their programme has been announced as being one of a widening of mediation to become intervention for the pacification of Mexico.

We think there is little doubt that Huerta will be willing to step out of the provisional presidency to serve the ends of his party in Mexican politics. But there is as little doubt, it seems to us, of his refusal to resign at once as a means of facilitating negotiations on the basis of later intervention and pacification. That would not be the diplomatic and political game which his representatives are at the Falls to play. That game, apparently, is to play upon the intense personal prejudice of the president against Huerta as a means of getting his consent to intervention contingent upon Huerta's withdrawal after the agreement is reached. It is not at all likely that they would advance or consider a proposal to have Huerta resign in advance.

So much of purely Mexican politics is involved in the diplomatic notifications at Niagara Falls that it is difficult, at the moment, to separate the two elements. Should we be found, at last, fighting in Mexico for that political party whose leader we have denounced as a usurper, and against that party we have been encouraging as representative of higher Mexican ideals and aspirations in government, it would have to be said again, as it has been said already, that we have at no time known what we have been doing in Mexico.

Republicans in Seymour and Jackson township should not overlook the convention at the city building tonight. It is important that every member of the party be present.

Candidates who will receive your support in the fall election will be named and every Republican should feel an interest in the meeting and the work to be accomplished.

Dr. and Mrs. L. B. Hill returned this afternoon from Madison where they have been attending the District
 Medical Society.

ANNUAL MAY REDUCTION SALE

ORIGINAL PRICES FORGOTTEN IN THIS EFFORT TO REDUCE STOCK

Having prepared for a warm and early Spring with heavy buying, we find ourselves at this time "loaded to the guards" with stock that should have been disposed of nearly a month ago, every department is full to overflowing. The weather has been so unseasonable that people simply would not buy, but the time has now arrived when we must unload no matter at what price, to this end we have made the most generous reductions in every department in the store, from top to bottom this REDUC-TION SALE will be one great sweep. You will be able to fill your hot weather needs at a most remarkable saving, incidentally you will be surprised at the pretty new things for Spring and Summer that have just made their appearance. In nearly every department of the store new style ideas are shown both in things to wear and goods by the yard, all of which may be had at great reductions during this sale.

LARGE GAINS MADE IN STATE TAX VALUATIONS

Unofficial Tabulations of Total of State Board Show Increase of $6,215,477 This Year.

Indianapolis, May 22.—Indiana gained tax dollars for the treasuries of her counties in almost unprecedented amount by the annual valuation of corporate property within the state by the state board of tax commissioners, which closed the actual work of its first spring session Thursday. Unofficial tabulations of totals taken from the public records of the tax board show that the net increase in the total valuation of all classes of property assessed by the state board this year over 1913 was $6,215,477. The net increase in 1913 over 1912 was only $3,807,299.

The total valuation placed by the state board on steam railroads, electric railroads, telephone, telegraph, express, sleeping car, pipe line and transportation companies, in Indiana business, reached the sum this year of $270,041,027, as against $263,827,550 in 1913.

Equalization of valuations was the watchword with the state tax board this year, as it has been since the present administration of the board has been in power, and, even under the rigid equalizing tactics of the board, only one class of companies—express corporations—showed a loss in total valuations this year. The decrease in valuation of the express companies—due principally to the manifest inroads of the parcels post on the business and earnings of the former plutocrats of the carriers world—amounted this year to $394,628 over the total valuation in 1913, which was $1,218,672. This year the total valuation of the six express companies doing business in the state was only $824,044.

Buying a Title.

Attainment of titles by corrupt means is no modern invention, at witness the following cogent postscript from a letter of the celebrated "Steenie" (Duke of Buckingham), to his majesty King James I., printed in Dalrymple's memorials: "Here is a gentleman called Sir Francis Leake, who hath likewise a Philosopher's stone; 'tis worth but Eight Thousand; he will give it me if you will make him a baron; I will, if you command not the contrary, have his patent ready to sign when I come down. He is of good religion, well born, and hath a good estate. I pray you burn this letter."—London Spectator.

WOMAN, WHO URGED KILLING OF INCURABLES, NOW WELL

Mrs. William Squier, Advocated of Euthanasia for Sufferers, Recovers from Illness.

Mrs. William Squier of Atco, N. J., who a year ago last Christmas sent a thrill of pity through the country by her appeal for euthanasia for hopeless sufferers, has been pronounced absolutely cured of an intestinal tumor by one of the leading surgeons and scientists of the country.

Mrs. Squier's story, printed on Christmas eve in 1912, was published in newspapers throughout the country. It told of a woman suffering tortures from a disease, who was under sentence of death, pronounced by physicians and surgeons, and who from what was supposed to be her deathbed sent a Christmas message to humanity asking for "scientific kindness" for those who suffer from incurable diseases.

"When an animal suffers hopelessly we put it out of misery," wrote Mrs. Squier, "but we allow human beings to remain in agony when there is no hope for them."

One of the leading surgeons of Philadelphia, whose name is kept secret heard of the woman's suffering and of her unusual appeal and took an interest in her case.

Lesson to Humanity.

Mrs. Squier regards her restoration to health as akin to a miracle.

"I am convinced now," she says, "that I have been kept alive for a purpose. Perhaps it was to prove to humanity that it should not give up hope."

"I am awed by the things that have happened to me, impressed more than ever by the mystery of the universal laws. I am singing in my heart today the old jubilate, 'Praise be for all on earth and in heaven.'"

Last Christmas Mrs. Squier was still weak and suffering from the effects of her operation, but she was in wonderful spirits and hoping to be cured by spring. Her hope has become a reality.

Mrs. Squier is absolutely cured, asserts her doctor, who says he can find no trace of her old trouble.

Still Believes in Euthanasia.

"I still believe," says Mrs. Squier, "that wise physicians and scientists and legislators can and will in the dim future work out a legal plan whereby those who are absolutely known to be hopeless sufferers can be put decently and humanely out of their misery."

"In my case there was a chance, which the doctors who examined me at first did not detect. Of course euthanasia should not be resorted to until every vestige of hope has been given up, not by one or a few, but by a gathering of scientists. But I am not thinking so much now of death as of life."

Mr. and Mrs. Squiers at the time she was visited on her "deathbed" by newspaper reporters were in financial straits. Mr. Squier, a retired Presbyterian minister, was losing his sight, and he and his wife were alone in their unfinished bungalow.

The story of their distress upon being published brought them aid. Their debts were paid and the bungalow was finished.

"Our days of pinching seem to be over," said Mrs. Squier, "and happiness is ahead of us. My health is getting better every day."

CRIME LESSONS FOR POLICE.

Squad Teaches Novices the Expert
Tricks of the Underworld.

Inspector Faurot and Detectives Cassassa, McKenna, Mugge and Toner have been selected to teach young policemen of New York how to work various confidence games, how to become expert "dips," how to "make a get-away," how to identify and avoid a "bull" and perform a hundred and one tricks of the underworld. This is to enable them to overcome the skill of the criminal.

Every morning after "lineup" the teachers will illustrate the methods employed by criminals. The first lesson will be devoted to pocket picking, "lifting the leather," frisking, job working, carrying tools and "stalling." The exhibition will close with a demonstration of the "pocketbook dropping game," which is popular in West street, where appear the newly arrived in the city.

Exploded by Wireless Ten Miles Off.

Giulio Ulivi, the young Florentine engineer and inventor, carried on some fresh experiments in Florence Italy, with electric ultra violet rays. While four mines were sunk in the river Arno the inventor transported his apparatus to Mount Senario, ten miles away, and within half an hour of the signal Ulivi, by a projector, exploded them all.

Signor Ulivi is to start experiments with apparatus capable of blowing up any explosive within a radius of eighty miles.

SALVATION ARMY SPECTACLE.

Cowboys, Miners and Hawaiian Islanders to March in London.

Delegates of the Salvation Army to the number of 144, representing the western division of the United States will leave Chicago May 28 for the international congress of the army in London. This gathering occurs only once in ten years.

It is proposed that the western United States delegation shall be the most picturesque of all those which will assemble from every part of the globe. The westerners will take with them the territorial band of thirty pieces and behind it will march representatives of cosmopolitan civilization mounted cowboys from the plains frontier miners in working garb, Asiatic and native Hawaiians clothed characteristically and a float adorned with orange trees and the fruits which have made California prosperous.

The international gathering is the big event in Salvation Army affairs. Representatives of the organization from all over the world meet in London for six weeks, where they parade and hold religious and business sessions. Every territory makes a special effort to be well represented.

The western United States delegates will not only have their floats, their mounted cowboys (eight of them), pioneer miners to the number of nine, two floats and a band, but the other delegates will wear characteristic western United States hats.

Another Charge of Arson.

Washington, Ind., May 22.—Joseph W. Suit, a farmer living near Whitfield, Martin county, was arrested here on a bench warrant issued from the Orange county circuit court, charging arson and swindling an underwriter. Suit told the sheriff that he lost his home by fire not long ago, everything he had burning up. He said he collected $800 insurance on the fire.

Season's Lingerie.

By Margaret Mason for United Press

New York, May 22.—Even if your underwear doesn't answer to all the requirements of modesty and propriety these days it simply must answer to a name or it isn't up-to-date. Most any deluded husband casting a weather eye over his wife's shopping list and catching such items as "one model Dorothea trimmed in pink ribbon" or "one pink and white Bettina, medium weight," would hastily offer to do her shopping for her. Quite the best he would get, however, would be a combination or a nightie not forgetting a good sized bill.

Just fancy calling your chemise by a pet name. You see they run in sets. For instance, there is the Marcelle combination, the Marcelle Envelope chemise, and the Marcelle nightgown all very Frenchy and handmade, of sheerest batiste banded in pink and white striped madras. Think how embarrassing it would be to get mixed and call your domestic machine-made Eloise combination by a hand-made name, it simply wouldn't do at all. They really don't do in the same set, you know.

Organdie not only plays an important part among the lingerie this season, but also as a frock accessory. No matter of what material your gown, taffeta or crepe, gabardine or cotton fabric, it must have a touch of sheerest white organdie either as a surplice-front, a gladstone collar, or puffed undersleeves.

Paris muslin which has all the transparency and the general effect of organdie and which can be laundered much more successfully, is a wiser substitute for the thrifty, however. As a hem-on such thin material never looks well to be really smart and correct the edges of your collar, sleeves and surplice must be finished with a hand-done picot edge. For the very, very hot days to come adorable fluffly whole frocks of organdie especially is ideal for the ruffles and puffs of the moment and as cool as it is charming.

INDIANA WOMAN THANKS MAYR REMEDY FOR STOMACH RELIEF

Mrs. Homer Sexton Tells Friends About Use of Wonderful Treatment.

Mrs. Homer Sexton, of Bloomington, Ind., suffered from digestive and stomach disorders for a long time. She tried to find relief, but it seemed a long way off—until she tried Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy.

The first dose gave her relief and started her on the way to health. She wrote:

"Your medicine did me a world of good. I have taken your treatment and believe it has cured me and I have told all my friends about it. I am ever so thankful."

Such words of praise come from users of Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy all over the United States. It is quick and safe. The first dose convinces—no long treatment.

Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy clears the digestive tract of mucus accretions and removes poisonous matter. It brings swift relief to sufferers from ailments of the stomach, liver and bowels. Many declare it has saved them from dangerous operations and many are sure it has saved their lives.

Because of the remarkable success of this remedy there are many imitators, so be cautious. Be sure it's MAYR'S. Go to C. E. Loertz' drug store and ask about the wonderful results it has been accomplishing—or send to Geo. H. Mayr, Mfg. Chemist, 154-156 Whiting St., Chicago, Ill., for free book on stomach ailments and many grateful letters from people who have been restored. Any druggist can tell you its wonderful effects.

PRESBYTERIANS PLAN RADICAL REORGANIZATION

"Insurgents" Determined to Reorganize Home Missionary Board, According to Leader.

By United Press

Chicago, May 22.—A radical reorganization of the home missionary board of the Presbyterian General Assembly was the chief discussion among the 800 delegates who are in Chicago today from all sections of the United States and a number of foreign countries. The assembly will be in session for ten days.

"Insurgents" in the Presbyterian church are determined to reorganize the home missionary board so that it will be of more service, according to Oliver R. Williamson, in charge of the general arrangements for the assembly, which is being held at the Fourth Presbyterian Church, the pastorate of Rev. Dr. John Timothy Stone, the retiring moderator. The claim has been made, Williamson states, that the home missionary board has become so centralized, and so unconstitutionalized that the churches and home missions field has had no voice in the policies of the church. It is to correct this condition, that the progressive element in the assembly wishes to overhaul that body, he claimed.

At this session, the 126th annual meeting held by the Presbytery of this country, it is expected that the way will be paved for the Rev. E. P. Hill, of the McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago, to succeed the veteran secretary of the home missionary board, the Rev. Charles L. Thompson, who, it is reported, will retire in June. Dr. Hill admitted today that he had been approached on the subject of filling Dr. Thompson's place, when the latter resigns.

There is widespread interest in the election of a moderator to succeed the Rev. Dr. J. T. Stone. For many years various parties and groups have gone to the assembly with vigorous political campaigns for the election of particular candidates. But at last year's assembly at Atlanta, Ga., a sudden reaction came from this political wire pulling, and since that rebuke was administered, delegates said today, there have been no open moves made by any groups to "put over" a certain candidate.

RECOGNITION OF DICTATOR SOUGHT

Mediators in Conference at Niagara Falls, Ont., Face Difficulty Problem.

PRESIDENT REMAINS FIRM

Mexican Representative Says That Mediation is Formal Recognition of Huerta.

Washington, May 22.—Vice Consul Silliman still is missing. The state department is endeavoring to find some man suitable for making a personal investigation into the disappearance of Silliman. The belief is growing in Washington that Silliman has not been freed, in spite of reports to that effect, or that he has again been thrown into jail.

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 22.—At the Clifton House, where the mediation conferences are being held, there is a deep air of mystery and a strong feeling that sudden developments in the Mexican situation are impending, prevails everywhere. In the conference room the mediators are hearing the arguments of the United States and Mexican representatives, but not a word of their discussion reaches the outside.

The feeling of uneasiness which is strongly in evidence throughout the place where an attempt is being made to settle the troubles of Mexico had its start when a press dispatch from Mexico City announced that the Mexican delegates had been authorized by General Huerta to offer his resignation if this should be demanded by the mediators. This message was denied shortly after by those who gave it out. It was explained that the dispatch had been received in code and had been erroneously interpreted, the correct meaning being that General Huerta denied emphatically ever having given such instructions to his delegates. But despite the dictator's denial the belief persists that he will be willing to retire if the negotiations now being conducted show that no solution can be arrived at without this step.

Not one of the mediators or the delegates of either government is willing to discuss the remote possibility of such an offer being made ultimately, but it is clearly evident that Huerta's voluntary retirement is expected. A report is current, however, that the Huerta delegates insist that the very formality of the proceedings at Niagara Falls and the willingness of the United States to treat with them, the representatives of the man who calls himself president of Mexico, is in itself tacit recognition of his power and position. The representatives of the United States, it is understood, have instructions how to meet and deal with this complication.

The President Remains Firm.

In view of the demands which Lamar and Lehmann will make on behalf of the United States, there is no prospect of a settlement of the differences unless the Mexican delegates will agree to the elimination of Huerta. The president's firm stand for the adoption of radical land law reforms is another obstacle which may prove insurmountable.

There is no doubt here that preparations are going forward for a possible movement of United States troops into Mexico. The movement of the Constitutionalists toward Mexico City has hastened war department preparations for sending additional forces to Mexico, which movement was presaged some time ago by the chartering of a number of transports and other orders preparing the army for instant mobilization.

The Constitutionalists concentrating on Mexico City, it is believed, will result in fighting there before many weeks. They are pressing their advance in order that the proceedings at Niagara, whatever their result, cannot prevent the forceful possession of Mexico City and Huerta's downfall as a result of their attack.

The United States plans will not permit Carranza and Villa following their own whims and wishes, it is reported, and the movement into Mexico City may be made in order to forestall any radical move by the rebel chiefs after their campaign for the possession of the capital, which now seems practically assured of success. In order to have United States forces in a position where they would command any situation which might arise out of the confusion of the desperate battle which must be fought at Mexico City unless Huerta flees, a movement inland from Vera Cruz would have to be made.

Dr. Griffith Convicted.

Greensburg, Pa., May 22.—Dr. Martin E. Griffith of Monessen was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter by a jury here. The physician was charged with causing the death of William L. Robinson, a music teacher, by beating and afterward mutilating him. The attack occurred in the Griffith home, where Robinson had been giving vocal lessons to Mrs. Griffith. The doctor admitted mutilating Robinson, saying he did so because he found Robinson attempting to attack Mrs. Griffith.

REBEL FORCES EVACUATE SALTILLO AS VILLA ADVANCES

Seizure of City by Constitutionalists is Leading Event in Northern Mexico.

Torreon, May 22.—Now that the important Mexican city of Saltillo is in rebel hands and San Luis Potosi menaced by a large army, the 10,000 federal troops under Generals Maas and DeMoure, who fled Saltillo, may face extermination. Behind is Villa with his army holding Saltillo. Before them are General Torres and General Gutierrez with 5,000 rebels who have been attacking San Luis Potosi and are supposed to be still continuing the attack.

Before the federal army, in any event, can reach San Luis Potosi, a stretch of rebel infested desert, 200 miles long, must be traversed.

The evacuation of Saltillo and its seizure by Villa's army are the leading events in northern Mexico. A telegram from General Villa, filed at Paredon, forty miles north of Saltillo, brought official news of the evacuation but not details. A message from General Angeles, Villa's artillery chief, stated that the federal left the city after the rebel column had made some directed movements against it, but before any general attack was delivered. It is reported that the heavy skirmishing took place within a radius of eight miles of Saltillo before the evacuation began. The federals are retreating southward in the direction of San Luis Potosi. Huertista sympathizers declare that if Saltillo is really evacuated the movement was made by an order from Huerta, who is concentrating his troops nearer the national capital.

It is expected that Carranza, his cabinet and other rebel government officials will transfer the headquarters from Torreon to Saltillo with the least possible delay.

GENERAL AGULFAR CAPTURES ANOTHER PORT AFTER BATTLE

Constitutionalists Continue Advance and Attention is Now Centered at Saltillo.

Tampico, May 22.—Having pacified Tampico and restored order, General Fonseca has left Saltillo to join General Villa. He sent about 1,500 of his best soldiers ahead of him under General Castro to assist in the attack. General Aguilera, at the head of 3,000 rebel troops, has taken possession of Tuxpan. While the town was evacuated several days ago, the Constitutionalists proceeded to clear up the country before going to the coast. They endeavored to catch up with the federals, who, however, escaped by water and are reported to have gone farther south.

Colonel Zanaga and 500 Constitutional soldiers came up on a detachment of fleeing federals at Rodriguez and put them to flight. He pursued them to Palmas, where they received reinforcements and made a stand. A spirited battle ensued in which the federals were defeated, and the rebels captured two trains, much ammunition foodstuffs and equipment. The federals then fell back on the main body of Zaragoza's troops which number, with their reinforcements, about 3,500 men. The captured train was brought into Ebano, which had already fallen.

SOUTH BEND BUSINESS MEN BECOME GOOD ROAD BUILDERS

Many Volunteers Answer Call to Work on Pike Leading to Niles—Women Prepare Noon Meal.

South Bend, Ind., May 22.—Editors, doctors, lawyers, bankers, manufacturers and merchants to the number of 750 worked ten hours as manual laborers, and as a result of their activity the South Bend-Niles highway, ten miles long, was transformed from a rutty road into one of the best gravel pikes in the state. The remaking of Niles road had been looked forward to for many weeks and consequently it was not surprising when the 750 men, ninety teams of horses and all the necessary implements for road construction started from the heart of the city to the highway.

Shortly before a gang of thirty men held in the county jail for petty offenses had been taken to the gravel pit near the highway, where they were joined by twenty-five inmates of the Berrien county (Michigan) jail. It was these men who filled the wagons with gravel.

At the state line, six miles north of the city, a big kitchen had been established and it was at this point that 100 girls and women prepared the noon meal, which was distributed to the various divisions by automobiles. The expenses were all met by popular subscriptions. What little work remains on the roads will be done by the county.

TELL THRILLING STORY OF BATTLE WITH TUBERCULOSIS

ESTLEE DEPERT.

To those not familiar with the wonderful results being accomplished by Nature's Creation, the story of how Estlee Deppert was restored to health reads like a miracle. Stricken with tuberculosis of the bone, the child's life was despaired of; then Nature's Creation was used and to-day her mother says she is in the best of health.

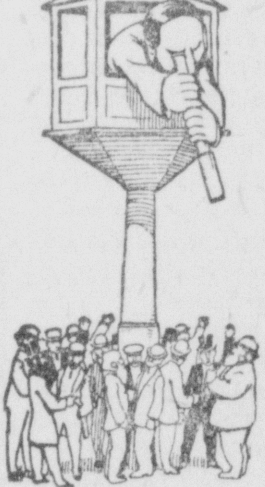

"A few years ago," wrote the father, W. H. Deppert, 1315 E. Market street, Indianapolis, Ind., "Estlee had tuberculosis of the bone. It was first in her right leg. A prominent doctor of this city scraped the bone in the leg and ten days later amputated it above the knee. A short time afterward, an abscess formed in her left arm and also in her left leg. The doctor said her left arm would have to be scraped, but he refused to let him do it. Had three doctors and two specialists, altogether, and all of them said practically the same thing: that the only thing to be done would be to scrape the bone. I had been reading in the papers about Nature's Creation, and called on Helen Wedell, 3104 Northwestern avenue, whose testimonial I had seen. My visit convinced me of the merits of Nature's Creation, and shortly after giving it to my daughter, the abscesses on her arm and leg opened and discharged the poisonous matter. Both healed nicely. "She has been gaining steadily, and everyone who knew of the condition she was in, is surprised at her remarkable improvement. She has a fine color and gained a good deal in weight, and appetite is good. She also helps her mother about the house. I can say positively that Nature's Creation saved her life and had we continued with the doctors, she would have been dead a year ago. I sincerely hope that anyone who has this disease will give Nature's Creation a trial."

"Like Raising the Dead."

In recent statements, Mrs. M. M. Deppert, the mother, declares: "Estlee is perfectly well. Yours is the most wonderful medicine I ever heard of, and it was almost like raising the dead to cure her. If we hadn't got Nature's Creation, she would have been dead long ago."

Men, women and children everywhere report astonishing recoveries from tuberculosis by use of Nature's Creation. In treatment of tuberculosis and the conditions which lead to it, such as bronchitis, impure blood, run-down system and asthma, it has no equal. Our new booklet, "Truth," tells all about Nature's Creation, and contains photos and testimonials from local parties. Write for a copy to-day—no charge. M. L. CHAPTER XI.

Haying Time.

EVERYBODY in Riverboro, Edgewood, Milliken's Mills, Spruce Swamp, Duck Pond and Moderation was "haying." There was a perfect frenzy of haying, for it was the Monday after the Fourth, the precise date in July when the Maine farmer said goodby to repose and "hayed" desperately and unceasingly until every spear of green in his section was mowed down and safely under cover.

If a man had grass of his own he cut it, and if he had none he assisted in cutting that of some other man, for "to hay," although an unconventional verb, was, and still is, a very active one and in common circulation, although not used by the grammarians.

Whatever your trade and whatever your profession, it counted as naught in good weather. The fish man stopped selling fish, the meat man ceased to bring meat, the cobbler as well as the judge forsook the bench, and even the doctor made fewer visits than usual. The wage for work in the hayfields was a high one, and every man, boy and horse in a village was pressed into service.

When Ivory Boynton had finished with his own small crop he commonly went at once to Lawyer Wilson, who had the largest acreage of hay land in the township. Ivory was always in great demand, for he was a mighty worker in the field and a very giant at "pitching," being able to pick up a fair sized haycock at one stroke of the fork and fling it on to the cart as if it were a feather.

Lawyer Wilson always took a hand himself if signs of rain appeared, and Mark occasionally visited the scene of action when a crowd in the field made a general jollification or when there was an impending thunderstorm.

In such cases even women and girls joined the workers and all hands bent together to the task of getting a load into the barn and covering the rest.

Deacon Baxter was wont to call Mark Wilson a "worthless, whey faced, Billy handed whelp," but the description, though picturesque, was decidedly exaggerated. Mark disliked manual labor; but, having imbibed enough knowledge of law in his father's office to be an excellent clerk, he much preferred traveling about, settling the details of small cases, collecting rents and bad bills, to any form of work on a farm.

This sort of life, on stage-coaches and railway trains or on long driving trips with his own fast "trotter," suited his adventurous disposition and gave him a sense of importance that was very necessary to his peace of mind. He was not especially intimate with Ivory Boynton, who studied law with his father during all vacations and in every available hour of leisure during term time, as did many another young New England schoolmaster.

Mark's father's praise of Ivory's legal ability was a little too warm to please his son, as was the commendation of one of the county court judges on Ivory's preparation of a brief in a certain case in the Wilson office. Ivory had drawn it up at Mr. Wilson's request merely to show how far he understood the books and cases he was studying, and he had no idea that it differed in any way from the work of any other student. All the same, Mark's own efforts in a like direction had never received any special mention.

When he was in the hayfield he also kept as far as possible from Ivory, because there, too, he felt a superiority that made him for the moment a trifle disconcerted. It was no particular pleasure for him to see Ivory plunge his fork deep into the heart of a haycock, take a firm grasp of the handle, thrust forward his foot to steady himself and then raise the great fragrant heap slowly and swing it up to the waiting hay cart amid the applause of the crowd.

Rodman would be there, too, helping the man on top of the load and getting nearly buried each time as the mass descended upon him, but doing his slender best to distribute and tread it down properly, while his young heart glowed with pride at Cousin Ivory's prowess.

Independence day had passed, with its usual gayeties for the young people, in none of which the Baxter family had joined, and now, at 11 o'clock on this burning July morning, Waitstill was driving the old mare past the Wilson farm on her way to the river field.

Her father was working there, together with the two hired men whom she took on for a fortnight during the height of the season. If mowing, raking, pitching and carting of the precious crop could only have been done at odd times during the year or at night he would not have embittered the month of July by paying out money for labor. But nature was inexorable in the ripening of hay, and Old Ivory was obliged to succumb to the inevitable.

Waitstill had a basket packed with cucumber for three and a great demi-

John of cool ginger tea under the wagon seat. Other farmers sometimes served hard cider or rum, but her father's principles were dead against this riotous extravagance. Temperance, in any and all directions, was cheap, and the deacon was a very temperate man, save in language.

The fields on both sides of the road were full of haymakers, and everywhere there was bustle and stir. There would be three or four men—one leading, the others following—slowly swinging their way through a noble piece of grass, and the smell of the mown fields in the sunshine was sweeter than honey in the comb.

There were patches of black eyed Susans in the meadows here and there, while pink and white hardback grew by the road, with day lilies and blossoming milkweed. The bobolinks were fluting from every tree. There were thrushes in the alder bushes and orioles in the tops of the elms, and Waitstill's heart overflowed with joy at being in such a world of midsummer beauty, though life during the great heat and incessant work of haying time was a little more rigorous than usual.

The extra food needed for the hired men always kept her father in a state of mind closely resembling insanity. Coming downstairs to cook breakfast, she would find the coffee or tea measured out for the pot. The increased consumption of milk angered him beyond words, because it lessened the supply of butter for sale.

Everything that could be made with buttermilk was ordered so to be done, and nothing but water could be used in mixing the raised bread. The corn-cake must never have an egg; the pie crust must be shortened only with lard or with a mixture of beef fat and dripping, and so on, and so on, eternally.

When the girls were respectively seventeen and thirteen, Waitstill had begged a small plot of ground for them to use as they liked, and beginning at that time, they had gradually made a little garden, with a couple of fruit trees and a thicket of red, white and black currants, raspberry and black-berry bushes.

For several summers now they had sold enough of their own fruit to buy a pair of shoes or gloves, a scarf or a hat, but even this tiny income was beginning to be menaced. The deacon positively suffered as he looked at that odd corner of earth, not any bigger than his barn floor, and saw what his girls had done with no tools but a spade and a hoe and no help but their own hands. He had no leisure (so he frowned) to cultivate and fertilize ground for small fruits and no money to pay a man to do it, yet here was food grown under his very eye and it did not belong to him!

The girls worked in their garden chiefly at sunrise in spring and early summer or after supper in the evening. All the same, Waitstill had been told by her father the day before that she was not only using ground, but that time that belonged to him, and that he should expect her to provide "pie filling" out of her garden patch during haying to help satisfy the ravenous appetites of that couple of "great, gorming, greedy lubbers" that he was hiring this year. He had stopped the peeling of potatoes before boiling because he disapproved of the thickness of the parings he found in the pie's pail, and he stood over Patty at her work in the kitchen until Waitstill was in daily fear of a tempest of some sort.

Coming in from the shed one morning she met her father just issuing from the kitchen where Patty was standing like a young Fury in front of the sink. "Father's been spying at the eggshells I settled the coffee with and said I'd no business to leave so much good in the shell when I broke an egg. I will not bear it. He makes me feel fairly murderous! You'd better not leave me alone with him when I'm like this. Oh, I know that I'm wicked, but isn't he wicked too, and who was wicked first?"

Patty's heart had been set on earning and saving enough pennies for a white muslin dress, and every day rendered the prospect more uncertain.

Waitstill's patience was flagging a trifle, too, under the stress of the hot days and the still hotter, breathless nights. The suspicion crossed her mind now and then that her father's miserliness and fits of temper might be caused by a mental malady over which he now had little or no control, having never mastered himself in all his life. Her power of endurance would be greater, she thought, if only she could be certain that this theory was true, though her slavery would be just as galling.

It would be so easy for her to go away and earn a living. She who had never had a day of illness in her life; she who could sew, knit, spin, weave and cook. She could make enough money in Biddeford or Portsmouth to support herself and Patty, too, until the proper work was found for both.

But there would be a truly terrible conflict of wills, and such fierce arraignment of her unskillful conduct, such bitter and caustic argument from her father, such disapproval from the parson and the neighbors, that her very soul shrank from the prospect. If she could go alone and have no responsibility over Patty's future, that would be a little more possible, but she must think wisely for two.

And how could she leave Ivory when there might perhaps come a crisis in his life where she could be useful to him? How could she cut herself off from those Sundays in the choir, those dear, fugitive glimpses of him in the road or at prayer meeting? They were only sips of happiness, where her thirsty heart yearned for long, deep drafts, but they were immeasurably better than nothing.

Freedom from her father's heavy yoke—freedom to work and read and sing and study and grow—oh, how she longed for this! But at what a cost would she gain it if she had to harbor the guilty conscience of an unskillful and rebellious daughter and at the same time cut herself off from the sight of the one being she loved best in all the world!

She felt drawn toward Ivory's mother today. Three weeks had passed since her talk with Ivory in the churchyard, but there had been no possibility of an hour's escape from home. She was at liberty this afternoon—relatively at liberty, for, although her work, as usual, was laid out for her, it could be made up somehow or other before nightfall. She could drive over to the Boyntons' place, hitch her horse in the woods near the house, make her visit, yet be in plenty of time to go up to the river field and bring her father home to supper.

Patty was over at Mrs. Abel Day's learning a new crochet stitch and helping her to start a log cabin quilt. Ivory and Rodman she knew were both away in the Wilson hayfield. No time would ever be more favorable. So, instead of driving up Town House hill, when she returned to the village she kept on over the bridge.

CHAPTER XII.

Uncle Bart Discourses.

UNCLE BART and Cephas were taking their nooning hour under the Nodhead apple tree as Waitstill passed the joiner's shop and went over the bridge.

"Uncle Bart might somehow guess where I am going," she thought, "but even if he did he would never tell any one."

"Where's Waitstill bound this afternoon, I wonder?" drawled Cephas, rising to his feet and looking after the departing team. "That reminds me I'd better run up to Baxter's and see if anything's wanted before I open the store."

"If it makes any difference," said his father dryly as he filled his pipe, "Patty's over to Mrs. Day's spendin' the afternoon. Don't s'pose you want to call on the pig, do you? He's the only one to home."

Cephas made no remark, but gave his trousers a hitch, picked up a chip, opened his jackknife and, sitting down on the grassward, began idly whittling the bit of wood into shape.

"I kind o' wish you'd let me make the new ell two story, father. 'Twouldn't be much work; take it in slack time after hayin'."

"Land o' liberty! What do you want to do that for, Cephas? You 'bout pestered the life out o' me gittin' me to build the ell in the first place when we didn't need it no more'n a toad does a pocketbook. Then nothin' would do but you must paint it, though I shan't be able to have the main house painted for another year, so the old wine an' the new bottle side by side looks like the old driver an' makes us a laughin' stock to the village, an' now you want to change the thing into a two story! Never heard such a crazy idee in my life."

"I want to settle down," insisted Cephas doggedly.

"Well, settle—I'm willin'! I told you that afore you painted the ell. Ain't two rooms, 14 by 14, enough for you to settle down in? If they ain't, I guess your mother'd give you one o' the chambers in the main part."

"She would if I married Phoebe Day, but I don't want to marry Phoebe," argued Cephas. "And mother's gone and made a summer kitchen for herself out in the ell a'ready. I bet yer she'll never move out if I should want to move in on a sudden."

"I told you you was takin' that risk when you cut a door through from the main part," said his father genially. "If you hadn't done that your mother would 'a' had to gone round outside to git in' the ell, and mebbe she'd 'a' stayed to home when it stormed, anyhow. Now your wife'll have her troopin' in an' out, in an' out, the whole 'durin' time."

"I only cut the door through to please mother, so't she'd favor my gittin' married, but I guess't won't do no good. You see, father, what I was thinkin' of is, a girl would mebbe jump at a two story, four roomed ell when she wouldn't look at a smaller place."

"Pends upon whether the girl's the jumpin' kind or not. Hadn't you better git everything fixed up with the one you've picked out afore you take your good savin's and go to buildin' a bigger place for her?"

"I've asked her once a'ready," Cephas allowed with a burning face. "I don't s'pose you know the one I mean?"

"No kind of an idee," responded his father with a quizzical wink that was lost on the young man, as his eyes were fixed upon his whittling. "Does she belong to the village?"

"I ain't goin' to let folks know who I've picked out till I git a little mite forrarder," responded Cephas craftily. "Say, father, it's all right to ask a girl twice, ain't it?"

"Certain it is, my son. I never heard there was any special limit to the number o' times you could ask 'em, and their power o' sayin' 'No' is like the mercy of the Lord—it endureth forever. You wouldn't consider a widder, Cephas? A widder'd be a good comp'ny keeper for your mother."

"I hain't put my good savin's into an ell jest to marry a comp'ny keeper for mother," responded Cephas humbly. "I want to be No. 1 with my girl and start right in on trainin' her up to suit me."

"Well, if trainin' is your object you'd better take my advice an' keep it dark before marriage, Cephas. It's astonishin' how the female sect despises bein' trained. It don't hardly seem to be in their nature to make any changes in 'emselves after they once gets started."

"How are you goin' to live with 'em, then?" Cephas inquired, looking up with interest coupled with some incredulity.

"Let them do the trainin'," responded his father, peacefully puffing out the words with his pipe between his lips. "Some of 'em's mild and gentle in discipline, like Parson Boone's wife or Mis' Timothy Grant, and others is strict and firm like your mother and Mis' Abel Day. If you happen to git the first kind, why, do as they tell you, and thank the Lord 'tain't any worse. If you git the second kind jest let 'em put the blinders on you and trot as straight as you know how, without shyn' nor kickin' over the traces, nor bolting, 'cause they've got control o' the bit and 'tain't no use fightin' ag'in' their superior strength. So far as you can judge, in the early stages o' the game, my son—which ain't very fur—which kind have you picked out?"

Cephas whittled on for some moments without a word, but finally, with a sigh drawn from the very toes of his boots, he responded gloomily:

"She's awful spunky, the girl is; anybody can see that; but she's a young thing, and I thought bein' married would kind o' tame her down."

"You can see how much marriage has tamed your mother down," observed Uncle Bart dispassionately. "Howsomever, though your mother can't be called tame, she's got her good p'int, for she's always to be counted on. The great thing in life, as I take it, Cephas, is to know exactly what to expect. Your mother's gen'ally credited with an onsertin temper, but folks does her great injustice in so thinkin', for in a long experience I've seldom come across a temper less onsertin than your mother's. You know exactly where to find her every mornin' at sunup and every night at sundown. There ain't nothin' you can do to put her out o' temper, 'cause she's all out aforehand. You can jest go about your reg'lar business 'thout any fear of disturbin' her any further than she's disturbed a'ready, which is consid'able. I don't mind it a mite nowadays, though, after forty years of it. It would kind o' gall me to keep a stiddy watch of a female's disposition day by day, wonderin' when she was goin' to have a tantrum. A tantrum once a year's an awful upsettin' kind of a thing in a family, my son, but a tantrum every twenty-four hours is jest part o' the day's work."

There was a moment's silence, during which Uncle Bart puffed his pipe and Cephas whittled, after which the old man continued: "Then if you happen to marry a temper like your mother's, Cephas, look what a pow'ful worker you gen'ally get! Look at the way they sweep an' dust an' scrub an' clean! Watch 'em when they go at the dish washin' an' how they whack the rollin' pin an' maul the eggs an' heave the wood into the stove an' slat the flies out o' the house! The mild and gentle ones likely enough will be settin' in the kitchen rocker readin' the almanac when there ain't no wood in the kitchen box, no doughnuts in the crock, no pies on the swing shelf in the cellar an' the young ones goin' round without a second shift to their backs!"

Cephas' mind was far away during this philosophical dissertation on the ways of women. He could see only a sunny head fairly rioting with curls, a pair of eyes that held his like magnets, although they never gave him a glance of love; a smile that lighted the world far better than the sun, a dimple into which his heart fell headlong whenever he looked at it.

"You're right, father; 'tain't no use kickin' ag'in 'em," he said as he rose to his feet preparatory to opening the Baxter store. "When I said that 'bout trainin' up a girl to suit me, I kind o' forgot the one I've picked out. I'm considerin' several, but the one I favor most—well, I believe she'd fire up at the first sight o' trainin', and that's the gospel truth."

"Considerin' several, be you, Cephas?" laughed Uncle Bart. "Well, all I hope is that the one you favor most—the girl you've asked once a ready—is considerin' you?"

Cephas went to the pump and, wetting a large handkerchief, put it in the crown of his straw hat and sauntered out into the burning heat of the open road between his father's shop and Deacon Baxter's store.

"I shan't ask her the next time till this hot spell's over," he thought, "and I won't do it in that dogdasted old store ag'in, neither. I ain't so tongue tied outdoors, an' I kind o' think I'd be more in the spirit of it after sundown some night after supper!"

Waitstill found a cool and shady place in which to hitch the old mare, loosening her checkrein and putting a sprig of alder in her headstall to assist her in brushing off the flies.

One could reach the Boynton house only by going up a long grass grown lane that led from the high road. It was a lonely place and Aaron Boynton had bought it when he moved from Saco simply because he secured it at a remarkable bargain, the owner having lost his wife and gone to live in Massachusetts. Ivory would have sold it long ago had circumstances been different, for it was at too great a distance from the schoolhouse and from

"Waitstill! Does Ivory know you?"

Lawyer Wilson's office to be at all convenient, but he dreaded to remove his mother from the environment to which she was accustomed and doubted very much whether she would be able to care for a house to which she had not been wonted before her mind became affected.

Here in this safe, secluded corner, amid familiar and thoroughly known conditions, she moved placidly about her daily tasks, performing them with the same care and precision that she had used from the beginning of her married life. All the heavy work was done for her by Ivory and Rodman; the boy in particular being the fleetest footed, the most willing and the neatest of helpers; washing dishes, sweeping and dusting, laying the table as deftly and quietly as a girl. Mrs. Boynton made her own simple dresses of gray calico in summer, or dark linsay-woolsey in winter by the same pattern that she had used when she first came to Edgewood; in fact, there were positively no external changes anywhere to be seen, tragic and terrible as had been those that had wrought havoc in her mind.

Waitstill's heart beat faster as she neared the Boynton house. She had never so much as seen Ivory's mother for years. How would she be met? Who would begin the conversation and what direction would it take? What if Mrs. Boynton should refuse to talk to her at all? She walked slowly along the lane until she saw a slender, gray clad figure stooping over a flower bed in front of the cottage. The woman raised her head with a fawn-like gesture that had something in it of timidity rather than fear, picked some loose bits of green from the ground, and, quietly turning her back upon the oncoming stranger, disappeared through the open front door.

There could be no retreat on her own part now, thought Waitstill. She wished for a moment that she had made this first visit under Ivory's protection, but her idea had been to gain Mrs. Boynton's confidence and have a quiet friendly talk, such a one as would be impossible in the presence of a third person. Approaching the steps, she called through the doorway in her clear voice: "Ivory asked me to come and see you one day, Mrs. Boynton. I am Waitstill Baxter, the little girl on Town House hill that you used to know."

Mrs. Boynton came from an inner room and stood on the threshold. The name "Waitstill" had always had a charm for her ears, from the time she first heard it years ago until it fell from Ivory's lips this summer, and again it caught her fancy.

"Waitstill!" she repeated softly.

"Waitstill! Does Ivory know you?" "We've known each other for ever so long—ever since we went to the brick school together when we were boy and girl. And when I was a child my stepmother brought me over here once on an errand, and Ivory showed me a humming bird's nest in that lilac bush by the door."

Mrs. Boynton smiled. "Come and look!" she whispered. "There is always a humming bird's nest in our lilac. How did you remember?"

The two women approached the bush, and Mrs. Boynton carefully parted the leaves to show the dainty morsel of a home thatched with soft gray green and lined with down. "The birds have flown now," she said. "They were like little jewels when they darted off in the sunshine."

Her voice was faint and sweet, as if it came from far away, and her eyes looked not as if they were seeing you, but seeing something through you. Her pale hair was turned back from her paler face, where the veins showed like blue rivers, and her smile was like the flitting of a moonbeam. She was standing very close to Waitstill, closer than she had been to any woman for many years, and she studied her a little, wistfully yet courteously, as if her attention was attracted by something fresh and winning. She looked at the color ebbing and flowing in the girl's cheeks, at her brows and lashes, at her neck as white as swansdown.

TAKE THIS MAN'S ADVICE

Try the Great Kidney Remedy

It always gives me pleasure to recommend anything that is right and so I feel it my duty to herald the praises of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root.

For years I was troubled with kidney disease and it was so intense that I was bedridden for days at a time. I gave up all hope and doctors for miles around gave me no help. Incidentally I tried several patent remedies and at last tried Swamp-Root. From the first it gave me relief and it was no time before I was able to be up and around and now I am perfectly well and able to work as I used to before my terrible sickness.

So now let me thank you for your wonderful discovery and take this opportunity to recommend it to all who suffer from kidney troubles. Yours very truly,

WALTER SHIVER.

Hope, Ark. Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 25th of March, 1912.

Letter to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

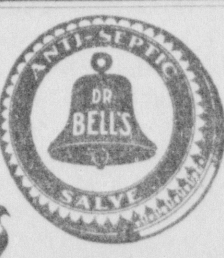

Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You.

Send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample size bottle. It will convince anyone. SOCIAL EVENTS.

OPEN MEETING.

One of the most enjoyable social events of the season occurred at the home of Mrs. E. L. Hancock, North Chestnut street, Thursday afternoon, when the members of the Indiana Study Club entertained about one hundred of their friends at their annual open meeting. The parlors of the Hancock home were beautifully decorated with carnations, spring flowers and ferns. Miss Lora Reynolds presided at the piano during the reception hour, and rendered some beautiful selections. The chief number was the delightful rendition of "The Piper" by Mrs. E. L. Lewis, of Cincinnati. Mrs. Lewis is highly artistic in her work, and she easily carried her audience with her through this beautiful lyrical dream. Her presentation of the various characters of "The Piper" was marvelous, and the old story of the piper became a new and live one under her deft skill. At the close of the program refreshments were served by the hostess. The Indiana Study Club is one of the several active Women's Clubs in the city, and the meeting of Thursday closes a year of profitable work.

A Chinese Flea Trap.
A flea trap is in general use in Szechuan. It consists of two pieces of bamboo, one inside the other. The outer is about a foot in length and two and a half inches in diameter. It is longitudinally fenestrated. The inner bamboo is of equal length, but only about an inch in diameter. It is kept in position by means of a short wooden plug. The inner bamboo is coated with birdlime or the like. The outer bamboo is protective. The trap can be placed under bedclothes, among rags and so forth. Any fleas that go through get caught on the birdlime. The traps might be of great value in connection with plague epidemics.—Dr. Huddle in Knowledge.

RETURNED TO DYNAMITE CHARGE AND IS KILLED

Porter Bowman, of Lawrence County, Meets with Fatal Accident While Blasting Stumps.

Porter Bowman, of Lawrence county, was killed instantly Wednesday while blasting stumps on a farm near Mitchell. He was known in this city. The accident is told by the Bedford Mail as follows:

Porter Bowman, some times called "Preacher" Bowman, whose home was on South Meridian Road, was instantly killed when he returned to a charge of dynamite which had been placed under a Poplar stump on the Lehigh Farm at Rabbitville yesterday afternoon, May 20th. The explosion tore a large hole in the lower left-hand side of his face and his body was thrown about five or six feet into the air. He seemed to breathe and struggle for about five minutes after his companions reached him.

He was working at blowing out stumps on the Lehigh farm with Hugh Miller, John Jenkins, George Parish and T. C. Dodd. The latter was the "boss" of the party of men. They had dynamited all the day before and Mr. Bowman had used almost one hundred pounds of dynamite in that day himself alone placing the loads, T. C. Dodd having placed a few pounds which completed the one hundred pound box. The second day was almost done and twenty-three charges had been placed under stumps, each with three feet of fuse, and lighted; this length of fuse gave three or four minutes after lighting for the men to get away. Twenty of the shots exploded as was intended, three remained. Mr. Bowman in sight of all his companions except T. C. Dodd went to the middle one of the three apparently to split the fuse and arrange to light it and was just stooping over it when the dynamite exploded. A root of a hickory stump struck T. C. Dodd on the left breast. The knife of Bowman was found in his pocket. He had not yet started to fix the fuse. It is believed by some that the fuse probably was too tightly wrapped so that a short space contained no powder. The cloth would then burn slowly over that space until it reached the powder again when it would burn rapidly along.

Mr. Bowman leaves a wife and a boy about four years old. He preached ed at the Holiness church at various times.

Henry White, of Bedford, is a brother-in-law of the dead man and with Mrs. White and his mother, Mrs. Nancy White, left for Mitchell over the B. & O. this morning in response to a message announcing the accident which occurred at about 6 o'clock Wednesday night.

Funeral at Holiness church tomorrow at 10 a. m. and burial at New Liberty Baptist church about one and one-half miles southeast of Georgia. Rev. Charles Shortridge preaches the funeral sermon.

Mrs. Catherine Downs Dead.

Mrs. Catherine Downs, wife of Wallace Downs, died at 11:30 o'clock Thursday night at her home near the County Line after an extended illness of dropsy. She was sixty-five years of age. Mrs. Downs was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Rinehart, and was born in this county. She is survived by her husband, two daughters, Mrs. Mattie Deputy, of Indianapolis, Mrs. Florence Wohrer, of Colorado, and one son, Carney Downs, who lives at home. She also leaves one grandchild. Several brothers and a sister survive her. The funeral will be held at 1 o'clock from the residence Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. E. L. Pettus. Burial at Riverview cemetery.

Funeral to be Held Here.

The funeral of Mrs. Susan McCarty, widow of the late Pierce McCarty, who died Thursday at Indianapolis, will be held in this city Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock at the Catholic church, conducted by Rev. Father C. J. Conrad. Mrs. McCarty was formerly a resident of this city and has several relatives living here. The remains will arrive in Seymour this evening and will be taken to the home of Peter Kidd. Burial at the Catholic cemetery.

Mrs. Amy Wagoner Dead.

Mrs. Amy Wagoner died this morning at her home in Jonesville following a long illness. The funeral services will be conducted from the Christian church at Jonesville Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock by Elder G. M. Shotts of this city. Burial at the Jonesville cemetery.

O. E. Gilbert, of Medora, was here last night the guest of his daughter, Mrs. R. W. Hargitt and this morning went to Indianapolis on business.
